Building on California Success: 3 Innovative Programs with Room for Growth

Creating a Path to Licensure

- What it is: English and skills training program for day laborers; path to becoming licensed contractor
- Who provides it: Centro
- Laboral de Graton (worker center); Santa Rosa Junior College

Incumbent Worker Upskilling

- What it is: Green Janitor Education Program; prepares janitors to work in LEED-certified buildings
- Who provides it: Building Skills Partnership (nonprofit labor-management partnership)

Welcome Back Initiative

- What it is: Guidance and information for immigrant health professionals seeking to re-enter their professions
- Who provides it: Nonprofit centers based at community colleges

Potential Policy Levers: Opportunities to Keep in Mind

SNAP Employment & Training

- What it is: Federal program to help food-stamp recipients find employment
- California selected in 2016 as one of 10 states in federal SNAP to Skills TA initiative
- Fresno selected in 2015 as federal pilot site for SNAP E&T innovation
- WA State & others have used SNAP E&T successfully to support English language learning

Occupational Licensure

- CA's nationally pioneering SB 1159 allows undocumented people to obtain professional/occupational licenses
- The Little Hoover Commission is investigating licensing issues from a state policy perspective
- Opportunity to design “on ramps” for DACA recipients, immigrant professionals & others to access licensure

Career Pathways

- Career pathways codified in WIOA
- NYC's Career Pathways initiative is a national leader
- Follow-up report from advocates examined how career pathways could better include immigrants

Longitudinal Data

- A bird's-eye view of education and workforce data can help identify bottlenecks that affect immigrants and English learners
- E.g., Washington state used a pathway evaluator tool to ID the problem that led to the creation of I-BEST
- CA is participating in SWEAP initiative to expand its use of data tools; developing its own pathway evaluator tool
