

Building upon the success of pre-apprenticeship programs centered around Mission Hiring Hall, the San Francisco Office of Economic and Workforce Development and CityBuild Academy; the San Francisco Labor Council is leading a new training partnership that connects women of color with apprenticeship opportunities in the building and construction trades. This project serves San Francisco County.

PROJECT HIGHLIGHTS

- SF CLOUT conducts targeted outreach to women of color and provides them with appropriate supportive services and training.
- Collaboration with the San Francisco Building Trades and its affiliated unions to secure access to apprenticeship opportunities, particularly in the mechanical trades, where women of color are significantly underrepresented.
- To address issues of retention, SF CLOUT is conducting a mentorship program that pairs newly indentured apprentices with journeywomen in the trades.
